

International Conference

CLIMATE CHANGE

&

SOCIAL SCIENCES

← What's going on? What's to be done? →

Freie Universität Berlin
February 02 - 04, 2023

Lateinamerika-Institut, Room 201
Rüdesheimer Str. 54-56, Berlin 14197

CONFERENCE PROGRAM

Climate change has become a key-theme of our time. While there is enough scientific knowledge and great public awareness, governments and citizens lack behind in tackling the crisis. Meanwhile, we know that the climate crisis requires not only an ecological transformation, but also a profound project of social change, known as socio-ecological transformation. In this conference, our concern relates directly to the societal and political dimension of climate change. What is and should the state and particularly the political system be doing? What to expect from economic actors, societal organizations, social movements and Non-Governmental Organizations, as well as citizens in this regard? What has been and can be the contribution of the social sciences to the proper consideration and to face up to this looming threat? We bring together scholars working with these issues in order to explore climate change in this broad, theoretical perspective.

Organized by

Financed by

UNIVERSITÄT
HEIDELBERG
ZUKUNFT
SEIT 1386

Bundesministerium
für Bildung
und Forschung

FEBRUARY 02 - THURSDAY

06:00 - 06:30 pm

Welcome Address

- Stephanie Schütze (Freie Universität Berlin)
- José Maurício Domingues (IESP-UERJ and Anneliese Maier Research Award 2018-2023, Alexander von Humboldt Foundation)
- Renata Motta (Universität Heidelberg)
- Marco Antonio Teixeira (Freie Universität Berlin)

06:30 - 08:30 pm

PANEL 1 – Social science and climate change: why does social science matter to climate science?

Chair: Sérgio Costa (Freie Universität Berlin)

- Critical Theory and Climate Change, Collective Subjectivity and Developmental Trends – José Maurício Domingues (IESP-UERJ and Anneliese Maier Research Award 2018-2023, Alexander von Humboldt Foundation)
- The Tragedy and Salvation of Climate Research - Myanna Lahsen (Linköpings Universitet)

08:30 pm - Reception

Organized by

Financed by

FEBRUARY 03 - FRIDAY

09:00 - 11:00 am

PANEL 2 – Socio-ecological perspectives in times of climate change

Chair: Renata Motta (Universität Heidelberg)

- The intertwined pathways of sustainability: trajectories, problems, paradoxes - Sighard Neckel (Universität Hamburg)
- Greening Bourdieu. How eco-social mentalities help to understand social and political conflicts over climate change – Martin Fritz (Friedrich-Schiller-Universität Jena)

11:00 - 11:30 am - Coffee

11:30 am - 01:30 pm

PANEL 3 – Conflicts, control, and climate crisis

Chair: José Maurício Domingues (IESP-UERJ and Anneliese Maier Research Award 2018-2023, Alexander von Humboldt Foundation)

- Climate Change, Control and Society – Sustainability Impossible? - Frank Adloff (Universität Hamburg)
- To win, we will also lose: social and material conflicts in the ecological transition - Sabrina Fernandes (Universidad de Guadalajara)

01:30 - 03:00 pm – Lunch

03:00 - 05:00 pm

PANEL 4 – International regimes, governance, and climate change

Chair: Maria Cecília Oliveira (Institute for Advanced Sustainability Studies)

- The Anthropocene, the Climate Emergency, and International Relations from a Brazilian perspective - Carlos R. S. Milani (Universidade do Estado do Rio de Janeiro)
- Neoliberal Climate Governance in the Paris Era: A Critical Reading of Recent Discourses on Mitigation, Adaptation and Finance - Angela Oels (Universität Augsburg) and Florian Steig (Universität Wien)

05:00 - 05:30 pm – Coffee

Organized by

Financed by

FEBRUARY 04 - SATURDAY

09:00 - 09:30 am – Welcome Coffee

09:30 - 12:00 am

PANEL 5 – Transitions and transformations

Chair: Isadora Cardoso (Freie Universität Berlin)

- Climate change, agrarian struggles and popular feminisms: The contributions of Marcha das Margaridas to a socio-ecological transformation
- Renata Motta (Universität Heidelberg) and Marco Antonio Teixeira (Freie Universität Berlin)
- Climate contentious politics, just socioecological transitions, and emerging conceptions of social change - Breno Bringel (Universidad Complutense de Madrid, Spain & IESP-UERJ, Brazil)
- Transformative adaptation: towards a re-politicization of adaptation research
- Kristina Dietz (Universität Wien)

12:00 - 13:30 pm

Wrap-up PANEL

Organized by

Financed by